

International Deafblind People's day - June, 27th!

Every June 27th, as I celebrate the International Deafblind People's Day, I try to publish some reflection to touch the minds and hearts of those who do not have these conditions to invite them to briefly sum up the daily life of a Deafblind Person.

Approaching is a way of knowing to understand. This year, I decided to share a sentimental statement from Charles Chaplin, that superb, and to me, unbeatable genius.

"I always like walking in the rain, because no one can see me crying."

I, Alex Garcia, always loved it and still love walking in the rain. Please do not ask me if it was or if, however, it is still to hide my tears...

It's a day to be remembered, not to celebrate, so here and now, when you take this Chaplin's statement into the depths of being, you can connect with the feelings of a deafblind person, not always visible and even less understood.

Greetings!

Alex Garcia - Deafblind Person from Brazil
